There was a knock at the door. It was a small boy, about 6 years old. Something of his had found it's way into my garage, he said, and he wanted it back.

Upon opening the garage door, I noticed two additions: a baseball and a broken window sporting a baseball-sized hole. "How do you suppose this ball got in here?" I asked the boy.

Taking one look at the ball, one look at the window, and one look at me, the boy exclaimed, "Wow! I must have thrown it right through the hole!"

A rather cranky elderly woman was caught shoplifting at a grocery store. From the moment of her arrest, she gave everyone a hard time—from the store manager to the security guard, and even the police officer who took her into custody. She criticized everyone involved at every step.

When she appeared before the judge, he asked, "Ma'am, what did you steal?"

With a defiant look, she replied, "Just a can of peaches."

The judge asked, "Why did you steal it?"

She huffed, "I was hungry and didn't have any money on me."

The judge thought for a moment and then asked, "How many peaches were in the can?"

She snapped back, "Nine! Why does it matter?"

The judge calmly said, "Because I'm going to sentence you to nine days in jail—one day for each peach."

Just as the judge was about to conclude, the woman's husband raised his hand and asked if he could say something.

The judge nodded, "Yes, sir, go ahead."

The husband said with a sigh, "Your honor, she has also stolen a can of peas."

Jim had an awful day fishing on the lake, sitting in the blazing sun all day without catching a single one. On his way home, he stopped at the supermarket and ordered four catfish. He told the man at the market to throw them to him.

"Why do you want me to throw them at you?"

"Because I want to tell my wife that I caught them."

"Okay, but I suggest that you take the trout."

"Why's that?"

"Because your wife came in earlier today and said that if you came by, I should tell you to take the trout. That's what she'd like for dinner tonight."

A policeman is walking down the street one day when he notices a very small boy trying to press the doorbell on a house across the street. However, the boy is very small and the doorbell is too high for him to reach. After watching the boy's efforts for some time, the policeman walks up behind the little fellow, and rings the doorbell for him. "There you go," the policeman says, "Now what?" To which the little boy says, "Now we run!"

Leaving the store, I couldn't find my keys. I checked my pockets, purse—nothing. Panic set in as I realized I must have left them in the car. My husband had warned me countless times about leaving my keys in the ignition, worried the car might get stolen. I rushed to the parking lot, and my heart sank—no car. Frantic, I called the police, gave them my location, and explained that my car had been stolen because I'd left the keys inside. But the hardest was yet to come. I nervously dialed my husband and admitted, "I left the keys in the car... and it's been stolen."

There was a long silence. I thought the call had dropped until I finally heard him. "Are you kidding me? I dropped you off!"

Now it was my turn to go silent. Feeling sheepish, I mumbled, "Well... come get me."

His response? "I will, just as soon as I convince this cop that I didn't steal your car!"

Recipe:

Gingersnaps

Ingredients:

2 C flour	2 tsp ginger
2 tsp baking soda	1 tsp cloves
1 C br. Sugar	pinch salt
1/4 C molasses	1 large egg
3/4 C canola oil	granulated sugar
2 tsp cinnamon

In a large bowl, mix together brown sugar, molasses, oil & egg until smooth. Gradually add all dry ingredients (except granulated sugar) until combined. Cover & refrigerate dough for 20 minutes. Preheat oven to 350°. After chilling, with clean hands - roll dough into generous 1" balls. Roll each ball in granulated sugar, coating evenly. Bake 8 minutes.
